

Materials: Hula hoop (available at dollar stores), posterboard, colored wide-tip permanent markers, pencil, scissors, bean bags (3 minimum), masking tape. (Optional: crayons, bicycle horn).

Directions

1. Lay a hula hoop on top of a posterboard and trace around the inside rim with a pencil.
2. Cut out circle, so it fits snugly inside the hoop.
3. Remove circle and draw 3 smaller rings to form a target. Color rings if desired.
4. Use wide marker to add 200, 300, 400 and 500 points as shown—highest points in the center bull's eye.

To play: Place hula hoop on floor with target in the center. (Tape target to hoop with masking tape if necessary.) Make a tossing line with masking tape for children to stand behind. Divide children into teams. When a child correctly answers a review question he gets 3 tries to hit the bull's eye and earn points for his team. Remove bean bags and rotate play. Team with the highest score wins.

For large groups or when several games may be playing simultaneously, as in a gym, let children on the same team toss bean bags at the same time. Use a timer and a score keeper to keep the games moving quickly. A small bicycle horn can indicate when the review game must end.

—Cathy Peek

